Hurricane Irma Update

St. Marys, GA., (September 11, 2017)- The City of St. Marys is currently still feeling the effects of Hurricane Irma, including strong winds and heavy rain. All citizens are encouraged to stay inside and not drive due to dangers, including downed power lines, trees and flooding roadways.

St. Marys water and sewer facilities are in distress and running at maximum capacity. Emergency personnel are working to restore services as quickly and safely as possible. Citizens are reminded that the mandatory evacuation is still in effect and should not return home. Further information regarding the lifting of the mandatory evacuation will be determined at a later time. For further information please continue to check www.stmarysga.gov and www.co.camden.ga.us
